DETAILED ACTION

1. Applicant's arguments filed 10/15/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. The rejection has been repeated below.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in-

(1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effect under this subsection of a national application published under section 122(b) only if the international application designating the United States was published under Article 21(2)(a) of such treaty in the English language; or
(2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that a patent shall not be deemed filed in the United States for the purposes of this subsection based on the filing of an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a).

3. Claims 1, 5-6, 10-11, 13, 15, and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by O'Sullivan et al. (U.S. Patent No. 6,259,755).

In reference to claim 1, O'Sullivan discloses a circuit in Figure 12 that comprises a frequency generating circuit (1109) which generates an output signal (1202) at a rate that is a multiple of input frequency of an input signal (1201A); a phase comparator (1104) which directly compares the phase of an edge of the input signal (1201A) with the phase of an edge of the output signal (1202) and controls the frequency generating circuit (1109) based on the comparison. The same applies to claim 6. The same also applies to claims 11, 13, 15, and 17, wherein the combinational circuitry is seen as the circuitry included in the phase detector (11), which is not shown, but is considered to be inherent.

In reference to claim 5, O'Sullivan also discloses in Figure 12, that the frequency generating circuit (1109) is a voltage-controlled oscillator. The same applies to claim 10.

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claims 2-4, 7-9, 12, 14, 16, and 18 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Claims 2-4 and 7-9 would be allowable because the closest prior art of record fails to disclose a circuit as shown in Figure 14 wherein the circuit further comprises a window signal (window) that is true during edges of the input signal and output signal to be compared in combination with the rest of the limitations of the base claims and any intervening claims. Claims 14 and 18 would be allowable because the closest prior art of record fails to disclose a circuit as shown in Figure 1 in which the combinational circuitry provides current source and drain to an output as up and down current pulses (see specification page 8, line 23 through page 9, line 2) in combination with the rest of the limitations of the base claims and any intervening claims. Claims 12 and 16 would be allowable because the closest prior art of record fails to disclose a circuit as shown in Figure 6 wherein each of the up and down pulses (up, down) has a duration which is a fraction of the input signal and the output signal transition times in combination with the rest of the limitations of the base claims and any intervening claims.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 10/15/04 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In reference to applicant's argument that the O'Sullivan reference does not relate to a multiplier circuit and does not suggest generating "an output signal at a rate that is a multiple of input frequency of an input signal", the examiner disagrees. It is considered well known in the art that phase locked loops can be used as multiplier circuits. In addition, as support for this argument, the applicant refers to Figure 13 to show that the recovered output clock 1202, which is generated by the VCO 1109 and fed back to the phase comparator 1104, has the same frequency as the data of the input data signal 1200A. This is clearly not true. Figure 13 clearly shows that output clock 1202 and input data signal 1200A have different frequencies and that the output clock 1202 is at a rate that is a multiple of input signal 1200A. The rejection is maintained and made final.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
